How do I display a blog created in Armadillo?

There is a dedicated Armadillo Blog stack which you must add to any Stacks page in your RapidWeaver project.

In stack settings, be sure to enter the correct ID for the blog you want displayed. The ID for the blog is shown for you in the Armadillo dashboard, via the "Pages" tab under the "ID" column. Blog pages are indicated by a special icon which looks like a small list. This icon is display next to the blog title.

If you specify an ID which does not exist in the database, and have the "Auto Create" option enabled in stack settings, then Armadillo will create a new blog for you with the ID you have entered.

Please note: The ID is always a number. Do not enter letters, special characters or spaces as part of the ID.
